

timeline: a look back at the lindquist legacy

1990

Artspace's first of three live/work projects in Saint Paul - the Northern Warehouse Artist Lofts - opens

1987

Kelley Lindquist is hired as President and reinvents Artspace as an arts real estate developer

1996

Artspace spread its wings to become a statewide developer of affordable live/work space by completing Washington Studios in Duluth

1995

Artspace expands its scope and develops affordable studio-only space with the completion of the Traffic Zone Center for Visual Art in Minneapolis, Artspace's first artist-owned project

1999

Artspace embarks on its most ambitious project to date with the move of the Shubert Theatre and its conversion into a center for Minnesota dance and music

1998

Artspace branches out to become a national real estate developer with its project in Pittsburgh, PA, the Spinning Plate Artist Lofts

2006

Artspace begins a robust consulting practice focusing on both new Artspace projects as well as consulting work with cities and arts organizations

Artspace takes over the historic Grain Belt Studios in Minneapolis and restructures them into viable centers of creativity for artists and creative entrepreneurs

2011

Artspace completes construction on The Cowles Center for Dance and the Performing Arts

Artspace completes the Chicago Avenue Fire Arts Center, a place for art that requires high heat, spark, or flame in south Minneapolis

2014

El Barrio's Artspace PS109 receives 53,000 applications for 89 affordable live/work units in the El Barrio neighborhood of East Harlem, New York

2012

Artspace breaks ground on its first ever live/work project in Minneapolis, Artspace Jackson Flats

2015

Artspace launches its first statewide initiative, Space to Create, a collaboration with the state of Colorado to create affordable live/work space for artists in 9 rural and mountain communities

2016

In partnership with First Peoples Fund and Lakota Funds on the Pine Ridge Reservation in South Dakota, the Rolling Rez Art Space center begins programmatic activity as the initial phase of the Oglala Lakota Arts Center

2017

Kelley celebrates his 30th anniversary and Artspace breaks ground on its 50th project